THE havor wrought by the floods in North China is not readily comprehended by those to the Government Civil Hospital, where he living at a distance from the scene, but some faint idea of the magnitude of the disaster that has overtaken the country may be gathered from the statement in the Tientsin paper that the number of the persons rendered the steamer Singapore left Bangkok with two homeless in Chihli is estimated at four millions. This is in one province alone, and refers to the inundations of the Peibo and other streams. There remains the tremen. dour overflow of the Yellow River, and the widespread ruin it has caused in Honan. Anhwei, and Shantung. Nor are these the only districts that have suffered from floods, The country round Kiukiang and Hankow is submerged owing to the overflow of the Yangteze, and there have been very serious floods in the province of Fukien and the island of Formosa. In the latter it is reported that upwards of three thousand persons have been drowned. It is sincerely to be hoped that this report is an exaggeration, but little doubt can be entertained that the floods in South Formosa have been attended with serious less of life. At present the distress does not appear to be very acute or the privations very great in Chihli, owing partly to its being summer and to the crops in the country bordering the inundations being exceptionally fine. But it is to be feared that when the autumn comes there the frontier. The Arsenal in Kirin has now will be much want and misery among the millions who have been dispossessed of their more efficiently, in order to turn out enough homes by the cruel waters. In the country inundated by the Yellow River, although help is not urgently needed just now, it is expected the people will be in a state of extreme

Any civilised Government would years taken some effective measures to prevent outlay, scientific engineering, and ceaseless watchfulness the enemy has been held bay. The Yellow River, which is the pri mary cause of "China's Sorrow," might be successfully grappled with by engineering science and turned into a blessing instead of curse to tens of thousands of thirsty acres, a means of welcome irrigation instead of a source of disastrous inundation Useless now as a means of inland communication, it might be converted into a great highway of commerce scarcely less important than its southern neighbour the Yangtsze. A correspondent of the N. C. Daily News in a letter a propos of the recent floods and the evils resulting from them points out, as an antidote to the climatic evils of North China, the desirability of utilising the Yellow River for the purposes of irrigation, render ing the agriculturists independent of the capricious rainfall and protecting them from these calamitous floods. After pointing out how this could be done, he goes on to remark :- " No doubt this would be a gigantic undertaking; but China is a gigantic empire possessed of gigantic resources, both of labour and material, and also-when it comes to the pinch-of money. And the benefits and manifold character of the benefits would also be gigantic." It would be necessary to engage foreign engineers, and it might be necessary to arrange a foreign oan, for although former rulers of China Grand Canal, it is to be feared there is neither he skill to design the works, the money to execute them, nor the honesty to use it rightly if subscribed. The Chinese do not trust their officials, and therefore although there is plenty of capital in China it is kept carefully locked out of sight. Appeals for loans are sparingly responded to, and the small sums occasionally raised as really forced contributions from the wealthier classes. Japanese wall-paper made in imitation leather first came before the foreign public at the Austrian Exhibition of 1871, but its capabilities were so imperfectly understood at that time that its exhibitor, Mr. Yamada Jirobei offered it as a substitute for carpeting. It was then made in pieces 36 feet long, and of various widths, but though its superior quality evoked favourable notice it failed to commend itself as a floor covering, being too thin and fragile for such a purpose. From an English gentleman. however, who had observed the adaptability the fabric as wall-paper, Mr. . (amada received an order, and subsequently a small export business was done in the article. In 1877 Mr. Yamada exhibited 200 rolls in the Paris Exhibition, and in the following year, attention having been directed o the product, employment in the Government Printing Bureau was offered to him which however, he refused. About this period various competitors entered the field, and bad workmanship soon caused a decrease in the export business. Chinese novels, and the drama; of Mr. Mori-Ogwai. as instructor in eathetics and of ir Aiba Koson as instructor in the Japanese drama. These gentlemen are now very well known in Japan among the rising literata. Mr. Morita Shiken is the literary editor of the Hochi Shimbun, and his miscellaneous sketches are admired for simplicity and grace of style. Mr. Mori Kwainan, son of the late Mr. Mori Shunto, one of the best poets of bis time, is already recognized as a worthy successor of his father fame in a certain branch of versification. He i an extremely fascinating writer. Mr. Mori Ogwai is a military surgeon by profession. Having graduated with distinction at the Medical College of the Imporial University, he subsequently spent several years in Germany completing his professional studies. But he is best known as a terary man, the most celebrated of his stories being Mai Hime, which appeared in the literary supplement of the first number of this year Kokumin-no-Tomo. Mr. Aiba Kosen has lone been, and we think still is, on the staff of the Yomiuri Shimbun. He is one of the most prolific novelists of the new school. The range of his

At a meeting of the Town Council of Edin bargh, the Lord Provest said that at present there was for sale the original manuscript of "Scots wha has." and it was in danger of going away out of the country, but the council could purchase it for £70 and he thought it would be a great pity that it should be lost to Edinburgh. It would be a great shame that the great war song of Scotland should pass to other lands and he moved, therefore, that the council should anthorize the purchase of the song. Councillor Anldio Jamieson said he thought it was just that it should be known that that monument of history had been purchased by a Scotchman (Mr. Kennedy, banker, New York), who desired that before removing it to Americs and placing it in a
